Lesson 1 - Meet King Xerxes

- Leader: King Xerxes, thanks for taking time out of your busy tyrannical rule to debrief us on what happened with your latest queen, Esther.
- Xerxes: Glad to help, but I gotta go soon. I have an upstart rebellion I need to squash at 3PM.
- Leader: No problem. Just want to learn more about the incredible reports we've been hearing about your queen. Is it true that her life was in danger?
- Xerxes: Well, not exactly. I mean, it was, but I was never aware of it until she brought it to my attention. And I put a stop to it. No one is going to hurt my sweet cutie patootie.
- Leader: Sounds like you love her a lot.
- Xerxes: Love? Well, I guess. Did you know she is the most beautiful woman in all my kingdom?
- Leader: Yeah. I've heard that. So what happened?
- Xerxes: Well, I guess one of my advisors, Mr. Haman, got irritated at a relative of hers – still don't quite get why, I'm not really into details and stuff. But since the relative was a Jew, he tricked me – TRICKED ME I SAY – into signing a law that for one day, just one day mind you, people could kill Jews if they found them irritating.
